Opis kolegija	The aim of this course is to explore the normative and formative dimension of memory. The course starts with the representation of history of memory (pointing out to the most prominent authors in the field) and then engages with the recurring ethical questions pertaining to the uses of the past: whether we have any ethical obligation to remember (e.g. the "memory imperative" driven by delayed reactions to the atrocities of the World War II and Holocaust); what we should remember and who are the (co)creators of collective memory"; how should we employ memories; and what are the ethical criteria for the uses of the past and right measure between too much and too little memory. The course focuses on both individual and collective memory and on a diachronic dimension of coping with the past, which is not only backward-looking but also future-oriented (identity polices, reconciliation, lustration laws, transitional justice, ecc.).
	Evaluate the phenomenon of memory as a medium and its communicative dimension. Identify ways in which public and media memory influences the construction of personal and ethnic identity. Highlight the role of media and interpersonal communication in preventing political, religious or ethnic memory abuse.
